Lecture Topics:

A spy Inside the Belly of The Beast

The story of a son of Holocaust survivors posing as a neo-Nazi sympathizer to infiltrate the highest echelons of this murderous organization and bring them to justice.

How does a neo-Nazi terrorist organization function? What do they want? How will they try to accomplish it? And-how do we stop them? What qualities must an ordinary man have to volunteer to undertake these extraordinary dangers, and what qualities must we have to face what life throws at us.

This lecture will be accompanied by the screening of segments from the HBO film, THE INFILTRATOR, based on Yaron's book.

Finding Hidden World War II Treasures

Buried diamonds in a foxhole, forged money at the bottom of a lake, coins buried in the center of a Polish city, Kristallnacht plunder in a German forest, jewelry at the edge of a concentration camp, or the smudged diary notes of a German soldier suggesting a vastness of stolen Nazi loot. Each episode a story worthy of an entire lecture, but seamlessly knitted together, one operation leading to another.

This lecture will feature segments from the HBO movie, THE INFILTRATOR and the History Channel docudrama, BLOOD FROM A STONE.

The Terrorists: Players, Problems and Possible Solutions

Yaron Svoray's knowledge of far-right terrorist organizations and the ever expanding world of Islamic terrorism comes from his personal experience of living as a spy inside the German Neo Nazi movement and his work as an investigator who followed the trail of the 9/11 terrorist back to their roots in Europe's shadowy world of fundamentalist terrorism. (Of which he wrote his in his ground barking exposé "sleepers")

The lectures are a firsthand account of what truly happens inside these organizations and Yaron offers some revealing and often fascination insights as well as some very surprising suggestions as how the west can deal with the ever growing menace of worldwide terrorism .
